

Terms of Reference Economic Development Task Group

1.0 Background:

Langley City has often been described as the Hub of the Fraser Valley, not only geographically but also economically. From a historical perspective and into the future, Langley City is the nexus and vital link between Metro Vancouver and the Fraser Valley. Langley City has articulated our vision in the document entitled Langley City: Nexus of Community.

We have a unique opportunity to capitalize on the new fixed rail rapid transit line that is coming to Langley City in the next eight to ten years. The train is the catalyst but it is not the reason. The reason is people—the ones who are already here and deserve an improved quality of life and better services, and the ones yet to come, who will bring new vitality to our city. The families that will grow and stay, building on our rich history and sustaining our community from a position of strength.

Imagine a future Langley City with a variety of new mixed-use developments that offer a diversity of housing, community services and business opportunities for residents— all in one place. Imagine a thriving downtown core that provides meeting places for our residents young and old. Daytime and evening activities, shops, restaurants and events drawing locals and visitors into the city centre. Imagine walkable neighbourhoods, with an emphasis on greenspace and sustainable living, connected by efficient public transit. At the nexus of these dreams and aspirations is our future city. We can attain this and more and our collective vision will help us get there.

One of the recommendations from the visioning document is to strengthen the role of promoting economic development through a concerted and concentrated effort by creating an Economic Development Office. There are two separate but interrelated functions of the Economic Development Office. One is an economic promotion and advocacy role. The second is an advisory role that uses the expertise of outside advisors with the best interests of the City in mind.
